

News Release

For immediate release

CSI today announced the completion of its acquisition of Chadwick Group of Morrisville, North Carolina. The transaction was finalized on June 4, 2008. The combination of CSI and Chadwick creates a network focused on the needs of companies with hygienic processes. The acquisition brings additional focus on some of the industry's strongest brands including CSI, Alfa Laval, Wilden Pumps, Anderson Instruments Co. and others.

This week the company will begin executing the planned integration of the two companies' operations, networks, and customer care organizations to ensure a smooth transition and immediate service to their customers.

Management of the combined companies includes Mark Cook serving as President and CEO and Bud Watts serving as General Manager of CSI Chadwick.

About CSI:

CSI provides design, custom fabrication and distribution of components, sub systems, and systems for the hygienic processing industries including food, beverage, dairy, health and beauty, pharmaceutical, and biotechnology. The Springfield Missouri based company has approximately 100 employees and has facilities in Springfield, MO; Morrisville, NC; and Fowler, CA.
